MEW-YORK DAILY TRIBURE, WEDNESDAY, MOTURERR 18, 1853.

Miss Kate Field appeared at Steinway Hall, last evening, and, in a happily devised and smoothly written narrative, described her personal experiences in the Adirondack woods. The occasion was uncommonly acreeable, and was enjoyed by a large audience-in which the intellect, culture, and fashion of the city were well represented. Miss Field has but recently adopted the lecturer's vocation. Her brilliancy of mind, however, and her soft, gentle, refined, yet piquant manner of delivery, have already gained for her a high professional

Her first discourse, delivered here last season, asserted woman's right to appear in the Lyceum, and cogently and eleverly discussed and dispelled divers conventional objectious to woman as a public speaker. Her second lecture tent a peculiar emphasis to this simple and sensible dectrine. It was a thoroughly good piece of work, in substance no less than expression; and a weman who can speak thus has the best possible justifieatten for speaking. If her listeners gained nothing which was not the case, for the lecture sparkled with humor and loving observation of nature-they must, at least, have drawn one valuable moral from the success of this pleasing effort; for they must have reflected that all persons, whether men or women, ought freely and fully to labor in whatseever useful and honorable parsuits are open before them. If all the women speakers of the time were as womanly, and, at the same time, as individual and characteristic as Miss Field, neither their number nor their loquacity would ever prove distressing.

It was notable, among other facts, that the speaker had something to say. Miss Field passed a considerable portion of last Summer, and the early Fall, among the Adirondack hills, drinking in their beauty with the heart no less than the eyes; and what she thus experienced she has reproduced in this narrative. It seemed peculiarly fit that a gentle woman-whose nature is simple, whose temperament is poetic, and whose mind is unworn and unfadedshould thus descant on woods and mountains, rocks and streams, and the loveliness and mystery of the wilderness. Subject and speaker were in complete accord, and the effect of the work was kindred with that of a musical and many-colored pastoral poem. Miss Field was pecu-lumly fortunate in her choice of this subject, since the choice grew out of her own life. All good works of art come in this way. The true poems of nature are written -not by men like Thomson, who used to stay in bed till moon, and who scarcely knew one flower from another (notwithstanding "The Seasons,") but by men like Matthew Arnold, who, as you may see in "Thyrsis," live in intimate fellowship with leaves and grasses, the fragrant earth, the moods of sun and cloud, the music of flowing brooks, and the loveliness of the stars. Mise Field has happily found her inspiration at this fountain-head. In her treatment of the subject, too, she has been equally fortunate. A fine sense of symmetry and a just perception of dramatic effect were perceptible in the arrange ment of incidents, the use of color, and the distribution of light and shade. This deserves particular mention, as a rare merit. So does the sincerity of the work, which impressed us the more deeply because it is so seldom met with in any direction. With Miss Field's vivacity of style our readers have had frequent occasion to become famuliar. It is a vivacity compounded of keen yet kindly satire and lively fancy; and it found ample scope, last night, in the lecturer's reminiscences of the minor miseries of camp-life, and in her sketches of characters encountered in the woods. Several of the latter were com ically eccentric, and were flavored with the shrewd sense and dry humor which are so prominent and so peculiar in the primeval American man. In depicting these Miss Field brought into play a lively faculty of imitation, and here and elsewhere she employed a great many felicities of humorous phrase. We should add that portions of her lecture were especially rich in delicate poetical similes. Another of its charms was its sympathy with hearty, wholesome ideas of living-these ideas being in no instance tediously expanded and enforced, but in many instances quiety and tersely suggested. To the feminine portion of her audiences Miss Field's experience must possess a positive fascination. Many a woman, we dare day, hearing how this one fared in the woods, will wish to imitate her brave and spirited example. Happy, if such wishes be fulfilled! for woman in the family would be a finer and nobler being for having been woman in the forest. Miss Field's discourse closed with a touching mention of her visit to John Brown's grave in the Adirondack country and a tender tribute to

LONG ISLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY. A PAPER ON CHINA BY PROF. BICKMORE.

The Long Island Historical Society met in the chapel of the Packer Institute, Brooklyn, last even ing, President Brevoort in the chair. A report was read, showing that over 200 valuable volumes had been presented to the Society since its last meeting. After which Prof. Allen S. Bickmore was introduced, and read an interesting paper upon his journeys in China. The lecturer first described the physical conformation of the country; its three great mountain ranges which divide the country into two great valleys, and its river, canal, and irrigating system, by which the country has retained its fertility through countiess ages. He said that when the country was finally open to foreigners the great Chipese Canal would be regarded as one of the wonders of the world. It is 600 miles in length and without a single lock; at some places 200 feet in width, with its stone wall 20 feet above the surrounding country. The lecturer believed that the true cause why China had remained stationary for 2,000 years, was that they had not allowed their women to be taught to read, and also because of the complicated nature of their maguage, the Chinese tongue being divided into six divisions, and their dictionary embracing 40,000 words. Still another cause was the bigotry of the Chinese at the present day, in not allowing any textbooks in their universities except those written by Connectus, therefore excluding all the scientific works of the European instons. China is divided into eighteen provinces, ruled by viceroys, who are very nearly independent of the Pekin Government. The lecturer believed, and Prof. Allen S. Bickmore was introduced, and read an in-Jucius, therefore excluding all the scientific works of the European nations. China is divided into eighteen provinces, railed by viceroys, who are very nearly independent of the Pekin Government. The lecturer believed, and all intelligent Chinese concurred with his opinion, that the distuncted provinces of the Empire would never be united again so strongly as before the Taeping rebellion. The Russian Empire was greatly dreaded at Pekin. Already the true border line between Russia and China had been pushed far south of the Amoor, and ran along the course of the great wall of China. The Russians had comquered Turkistan in Central Asia, and were taking into their pay nations that had paid tribute to the Chinese for couturies. The lecturer concluded with remarks upon Chinese emigration to this country. He said that thousands upon thousands were preparing to come as soon as they were able. The report has spread in China that in America they will receive high wages and protection for the property they may acquire, and we may therefore expect an enormous immigration to this country within the next few years. If we admit them to the right of the ballot, we must expect to see them vote as a unit. No nation on the globe were so conscious of the advantages of unity as the Chinese. In every town in China you will find a guild whose authority is supreme, and whose commands no one thinks of disputing. They will bring the same state of society to our shores.

17. Hayes, the Arctic explorer, followed Mr. Bickmore, with an interesting account of his late voyage to Greenland. He related the history of the country from its foundation by the Northmen in the 15th century to the present day, and described the ruins of towns and churches, which, scattered all over southern Greenland-bear witness of an extinct race.

Terry, Peckskill.

The paper on "Modern Spiritualism" brought out a reported discussion and democration of the art. One or two members, however, seemed to lean toward the doctrine. Perhaps its most vigorous enemy was the Rev. Dr. Gibsen of Cold Spring. He slashed away at it unspar-ingly, while the Rev. Mr. Harrower of Rhinebeck treated work in the engine-house of the Company at Long Dock, ready for an emergency. An order was issued from the Eric officers yesterday, imposing an additional freight tariff of five cents per hundred weight upon freights too or from New-York or Jersey City. The present rate is the old charter rate of five cents, plus the tunnel rate of three cents, plus three cents to cover the Government tax, or eleven cents angregate. The new addition is for "terminal expenses," i. e., loading and unloading, making the rate 16 cents per hundred weight. It is estimated that the increased freight on flour is 10 cents per bbl.; sugar or sait, 13 cents; cotten, $1 per tun.

TWENTY-THIRD REGIMENT PROMENADE CON-CERT.

The Academy of Music, in Brooklyn, was crowded last evening by the members of the 23d Regiment N. G., S. N. Y., and their friends, on the occasion of their seventh promenade concert. These entertainments have always been attended by the elite and fashion of Brooklyn, and last evening was no exception. The galleries were tastefully decorated with evergreens and flowers, and in the background was an allegorical painting, the pedestal of which was brilliantly libuminated. The regimental band, numbering 100 performers, was seated on a platform to the left of the stage. The concert opened with the grand march, "Prospect Park," followed by the overture to William Tell, and other choice pieces, after which a detachment of the regiment went through the ceremony of dress parade. The galleries were crowded with ladies in elaborate toilets, impatient for the beginning of Part 3d, which was entirely devoted to promenading and dancang. At the conclusion of the dress parade the floor was quickly througed by the members of the regiment, in their stylish uniforms, accompanied by their fair partners. The festivities continued until after midnight, and all present waited for "Home Sweet Home," the familiar strains of which were sounded about 1 o'clock. The various Committees were assiduous in their attentions to their friends, and the entire affair was a very enjoyable entertainment. their seventh promenade concert. THE VANDERBILT BRONZE.

To-day, at 1 p. m., the work in bronze illustrating the career of Commodore Vanderbilt, erected at the St. John's Park Depot of the Hudson River Road, will be unveiled with special ceremonies, including a prayer by Bishop Janes, an oration by Mayor Hail, an ode by William Ross Wallace, and a benediction by the Rev. R. G. Quennell, with music by Grafulla's Band. President Grant has written the following letter in response to an invitation to be present:

Sir: I am in receipt of your letter of the 25th alt, inviting me to participate in the ceremony of inveiling the "Vanderbilt Bronze" in the City of New York on the 16th inst. It would afford me great pleasure to be present upon this occasion, and to witness the unrelling of a statue commemorative of the distinguished services of one whose life has been spent in developing osculu public enterprises. But I fied that my public duries will not permit me to be absent from the Capital at that time, and I shallstherefore not be able to accept your very cordial invitation. Very respectfulr.

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE.

Early yesterday a gang of young ruffians eized Joanna O'Brien, a homeless woman, whom they found in Cherry st., and dragged her into the hallway of No. 104, a tenement occupied by a number of families, where they attempted to grossly outrage her. She resisted them, and screamed for help, when one of the ruffans, enraged at her resistance, stabbed her twice in the face and twice in the back, causing very serious wounds. The rescals then fied. The woman was conveyed to the color to be the color of the rescale than the rescale them for the woman was conveyed to the Oak-st. At the Spring-st. Presbyterian Church, near Varick, the Kev. William Alkman last evening delivered a lecture before a large audience, on "True Development of Manliness." This lecture was the first of a series to be delivered at this church on Tuesday evenings.

A numerous and fashionable audience listened A numerous and tashionable audience instelled last night to the first of a series of lectures on music by Prof. Ritter at Weber's Pianoforte Rooms, corner of Sixteenth-st, and Fifth-ave. The lecture was historical and technical, with occasional practical illustrations, and treated of the invention of harmony and folksong, from the Christian era to the latter part of the fourteenth century. The audience was much interested.

The excavations for the area wall of the new The excavations for the area wall of the new Post-Office were completed yesteriay. In consequence of the stoppage of this portion of the work, 288 workmen have been discharged. The remainder are engaged in laying the large blocks of stone which form the foundation for the front of the building, and also in laying the concrete in the trench just excavated—a large gang of them working upon the latter until 10 p. m. yesterday. The work of excavation has been completed in a little less than two months, or five months sooner than was expected.

The third of a course of public lectures was delivered last evening, at the Fortieth st. Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. Charles H. Payson. His subject was "A Walk and a Talk About the Tyrolese Alps." After giving a graphic description of the mountainous region, the lecturer described the character, habits, costume, &c., of the inhabitants, spoke of the modes of traveling in the country, the great daugers experienced in crossing the snow-covered peaks, the courage of the Tyrolese mountaineer, and his skill at sharp-shooting, which is unsurpassed by any ration, and one reason why Tyrol has always maintained its partial independence.

George William Curtis delivered his lecture upon "American Literature" last evening at Trenor's Lyric Hall, under the auspices of the Pastoral Aid Society of the Church of the Holy Trinity (the Rev. S. H. Tyng's), and in aid of the Local Missionary and Hospital Fund of and in aid of the Local Missionary and Hospital Fund of that Society. The ball was well filled with an intelligent and evidently appreciative audience of ladies and genti-men who appeared thoroughly to enjoy the intellectual treat presented to them. The fecture is one calculated to suggest thought rather than to provoke momentary ap-plause; but all the more pointedly patriotic suggestions of the speaker were received with sufficiently marked tokens of sympathy and acceptance.

Testerday morning, in accordance with the decision of the referee (Mr. DeForrest), Paine appeared, and completed his number of birds. John Taylor was not present, and an officer of the Metropolitan Police force trapped the birds as a disinterested party. Paine having killed them all, the referee cave him the victory, and wrote a card to that effect to the editor of The Spirit of the Times. At the last interview Paine had with Taylor, the latter declared himself ready to accept a draw and shoot over again, but the verdict of the referee settles the reatter and establishes Paine winner of the match. Even if Taylor had appeared on the ground, he could have done no more than tied Paine if the latter had failed to kill any.

The Microscopical Society met at No. 58 Madison-are, last night. Prof. Edwards read a paper, illustrated with specimens and diagrams, on the illumination of objects under the microscope. He described the Rev. Mr. Reade's illuminator, and exhibited an improved amici prism, contrived by himself, and made by Mr. Miller of this city. The result he had arrived at was that the best illuminator was the total reflection right angle prism. He also showed that he and Mr. Wenham had used the same mode of illumination that Mr. Reade had subsequently obtained a medal for at the Exposition of 1862. Mr. Mason said Prof. Edwards's paper showed that those who made discoveries should publish them. He had used several pieces of apparatus which lately had been patented by others. It was proposed to purchase the French, German, and English reports on Microscopy.

MORRISTOWN, N. J .- The Common Coun-

cli has refused to grant licenses to beer saloons, and a public meeting, attended by a large number of citizens, has been held to sustain the action.

A GREAT DAY FOR KNOX .- Yesterday was

ne of the windlest days of the season, and the way the custors went shy ing up Broadway and through other thoroughfares was a caution to Fall styles. But "it's an ill wood that blows nebody good;" and those who lost their hats or had them damaged so that they looked as if they had been through a course of station-houses the night before, only had to step late Kwex's and have them replaced by the sublimest style of tiles of the season. Kwex's hate can stand a high wind amid clouds of dust, or a heavy rain, and come out with a brighter gloss than any other styles manufactured in the city. Knox knocks competition in everything he udertakes-from a Loew bridge to the highest old sign in New York.

FIRST MORTGAGE CONVERTIBLE

SINKING FUND SEVEN PER CENT GOLD BONDS

DANVILLE, URBANA, BLOOMINGTON AND PEKIN RAILROAD COMPANY OF ILLINOIS,

Principal and interest payable in gold at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, New-York. Coupone payable April and October 1.

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX. LENGTH OF ROAD 117 3-100 MILES.

TOTAL ISSUE OF BONDS $2,000,000. The bonds are limited to less than $18,000 per mile, and are secured by a First Mortgage on the entire property of the Company, which cost about $40,000 per mile, and which, we can say with the utmost confidence, will be worth soon after the completion of the road at least double its cost. The consolidation of this line with the Indianapolis, Crawfordsville and Danville Road places over two hundred miles under one management, and furnishes still further security to the bondholders, these bonds having been assumed a virtual guarantee) by the consolidated company under the name of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad Company. This is an east and west road, connecting with direct lines to Boston, New-York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore on the east. and with the Pacific Roads on the west. It runs through the richest and most populous district of Illinois, the local business of which will be more than sufficient to sustain it, while the through business (which will be limited only by the capacity of the road) must make it one of the best paying railways in the country. The greater part of the road is now finished, and the balance will be completed and thoroughly equipped by the first of January next. Over two-thirds of the losn has been taken by actual investors. We continue to offer, for the present, the balance at 25 and accrued interest in currency, at which price they pay about 10 per cent interest in currency-50 per cent more than Governments. The high premium which the stock of all the East and West roads in Illinois commands justifies the belief that the stock of this road will also soon sell above par, thus making the convertible clause of the bond a valuable option. These bonds may be registered, if desired. All marketable securities received in exchange at the highest market rates. Bonds forwarded by express free of charge. Pamphlets containing full particulars furnished on application by the undersigned. financial agents of the Company
